BABY FELL FROM ELEVATED

OUT OF CAR WINDOW OF MOVING TRAIN—WAS'N'T HURT.

Timely Brewery Wagon Caught Little Theodore in its Canvas Hood and Driver Stopped Roll to the Pavement—Bundles to Blame—Mother's Shriek of Horror.

Theodore Sachnin, who isn't 3 years old yet, will probably be pointed out until he dies as the young man who fell head first out of the window of a moving elevated train and landed thirty feet below without a bruise. It happened yesterday.

Theodore's mother is Mrs. Rosie Sachnin, a young woman who lives at 627 East 142d street. She dressed the boy in his best jacket with brass buttons on it and his little soldier cap and then took him down town shopping. Her arms were full of bundles at about 11:30 o'clock when she climbed the stairs of the Third Avenue elevated station at Fourteenth street bound for home, with Theodore toddling along beside her, clinging to her free hand.

The bundles were what caused this story. As soon as they were seated in the train Mrs. Sachnin began to stow the bundles under the seat while Theodore bounced up and down with glee as he watched through the open window the houses slip by. His last bounce dislodged the soldier's cap and it sailed out of the window. The baby grabbed for it. His mother's attention was on the bundles and she looked up just in time to see her son disappear out of the open window. Other passengers who heard her scream will never forget the agony of it.

The train was at Sixteenth street when this happened and directly under it Adolph Langrehn, who lives at 339 East Ninety-first street, was driving a big brewery wagon up town loaded high with empty barrels. The load was heavy; the horses were plodding slowly along and Langrehn was half dozing in the shade of the hood over his seat when something crashed into the canvas not a foot above his head. Langrehn awoke with a start. The something bounced off the hood to a beer barrel, a foot or two away and began to roll off toward the horses, when the driver grabbed at it instinctively. Then he found it was a baby with a healthy pair of lungs. Langrehn saw a policeman two blocks up the street and drove to him on a gallop. "Here's a kid," he yelled, "that fell into

LEFT CENTRE.

Another Sale of Robes With Prices Less Than Heretofore.

We have been the largest purchasers of Lace, Net, Mull and Linen Robes in New York this season, having bought and sold thousands. We still have the most complete assortment of styles and models in town.

All the Robes now here, however, must leave us quickly—and we have cut former low prices until they bear no relationship whatsoever to what have been the most startling values in the city.

Included in the collection we shall offer to-morrow are Summer robes of all kinds, such as mull, batiste, lawn, hand-embroidered linen, handkerchief linen, English eyelet, butcher linen, batiste and Irish lace combinations.

$15 Robes at $7.98
$20 Robes at $11.25
$25 Robes at $13.50
$30 Robes at $16.25
$45 Robes at $19.75

Do not forget that every one of these Robes came from abroad. We know the superiority of the foreign product in this line. It means daintier patterns, finer work and more original designs.

1ST FL.

SATISFACTORY RESULTS.

MINERS' COMMITTEE ADJOURNS.

No Assessment Ordered, Since There is $3,000,000 in the Treasury.

INDIANAPOLIS, April 21.—The executive committee of the United Mine Workers adjourned to-day. No assessments were ordered. As there is now $3,000,000 in the treasury it was not thought necessary and no action will be taken until conditions demand it.

None of the committee would give anything connected with the anthracite status. The special anthracite scale committee will consider all questions relating to that at the Wilkes-Barre meeting called for Wednesday next. Secretary Wilson goes to bituminous Pennsylvania immediately, while President Mitchell will attend the anthracite meeting at Wilkes-Barre.

Secretary Taft Favors Reducing Membership of Canal Commission to Three.

WASHINGTON, April 21.—Secretary Taft, who continued his hearing before the Senate Committee on Inter-oceanic Canals to-day, declared unequivocally in favor of reducing the membership of the Isthmian Canal Commission to three and requiring them to remain on the Isthmus. This reduction is provided for by Senator Kittredge's bill.

CENTRAL'S HEAD OPERATOR.

W. C. Brown to Be Senior Vice-President—Headquarters Here.

W. C. Brown, one of the six vice-presidents of the New York Central road and general manager of the operating department of the line, has removed his headquarters from Chicago to New York.

The change is due to the recent concentration of the road's operating department, which will enable Mr. Brown to control the department more easily from this city than from Chicago.

Mr. Brown will become on June 1 the senior vice-president. W. H. Newman will remain president.
